The husband was firm in the repetition of his testimony of yesterday, when he told how on the evening of Dec. 2 he discovered his wife in a compromising position with his cousin, Harry Hayward, after an absence from the room of about forty acconds.

charges against her as soon as they were made public, as did also Bouctault.

Despite her denials, a short time after the publication of Mrs. Boucleault's charges, Miss Bateman was asked to resign from the Professional Woman's League.

Shortly after this occurence John T. Sullivan, manager of the Coghlans' company, requested Aubrey Boucleault to resign from the company. He gave as his reason a fear that the presence of both Boucleault and Miss Bateman in the same company might cause scandain view of the charges that had been made.

As Mrs. Boucleault expected to be absent from the city when the case came to trial, she was allowed to give her toxitiment on Sept. 3 last before leaving the city with ner company.

At that time she swore that she knew nothing of her own knowledge as to the charges against Miss Bateman, and had based her affidavit in her suit upon information and belief.

Mrs. Boucleault was represented this morning by Attorney Robert Griffin, of Col. Robert Ingersoll's office, Lawyer Hummel appeared for Boucleault, and also represented Miss Bateman.

No witnesses were put on the stand. An affidavit from E. J. Henley, the actor, was offered in evidence.

Henley swore that several times during the Fail of 1882 he had visited a disorderly house in San Frangisco in company with Boucleault.

No denial of Henley's affidavit was made by Boucleault.

Mrs. Bouckault a decree on that testimony.

Lawyer Hummel then called the Judge's attention to the charges that had been made against Miss Bateman, and said he wanted it to appear on the record that not the slightest evidence in support of the charges had been offered.

Judge McAdam granted Mr. Hummel's request, and entirely exonerated Miss Bateman.

The decree gives Mrs. Bouckault the right to resume her maiden name and to marry ugain if she wishes.

An "Evening World" reporter asked Mr. Hummel after the case was closed if he, as Miss Bateman's attorney, would bring an action against the Professional Woman's League. He did not state positively, but intimated that he would take that course.

An "Evening World" reporter asked his eavesdropping, and again heard Hayward by a peculiar cough to which he was subject.

That night Richard could not keep quiet, and called out, "Alice, Hayward is in there with you."

Mrs. Gaul shouted, "Go back and mind your own business."

Mrs. Gaul shoules, "To back any your own business."
"Go back and mind your own business," echoed little Madge, who stood at the knee of Mr. Flowerdew, Mrs. Gaul's father, busily taking notes of Richard's testimony.

Lawyer Meyer then took hold of the witness and proceeded to rattle Richard until his state of mind was painful to see.

A Doctor Says Hambrough Could Not Have Died by Accident.

(By Associated Press.)
EDINBURGH, Dec. 14.—The trial of Alfred J. Monson, accused of the murder of Lieut. Hambrough, in August last, was continued this morning.

The ushers of the court were busy, previous to the resumption of the hearing, in fixing on the wall, behind the urymen, a diagram illustrative of the spread of leaden pellets fired from a shotgun. The defense also prepared a number of similar diagrams. McNaughten, the gunmaker, who was examined yesterday, was again placed on the stand, and, upon tross-examination, admitted that he, under the supervision of three doctors, experimented upon three dead bodies at the Edin-burgh Morgue.
